

CRITERIA FOR INCLUSION

Criteria for Inclusion on the President's Panel of RICS Accredited Expert Witnesses

RICS Dispute Resolution Service

These criteria apply if you wish to become an RICS Accredited Expert Witness. The accreditation will entitle you to inclusion on the RICS President's Panel with full use of the benefits available to the members of this panel including nominations by the President.

These criteria focus on the knowledge, skills, experience, and qualifications required to undertake the role of an expert witness; to be accredited as such by RICS; to be included on the RICS President's Panel in this capacity, and so to be eligible for nominations by the President.

Your application will be assessed on your submissions and your panel interview.

In order to be considered for inclusion on the RICS President's Panel of Accredited Expert Witnesses, you must satisfy the following entry requirements:

- Successful completion of the RICS Expert Witness Certificate (including successful assessment of all five competencies of the RICS Expert Witness Certificate) *
- A minimum of 10 years' experience in your primary profession or demonstrable equivalent seniority and professional standing
- Recognition by the market, as reflected in your referees' comments, of your active involvement and expertise in your sphere of professional practice
- A minimum of one expert witness report completed by you in the last five years
- Compliance with CPD requirements of your principal professional body/bodies in the last three calendar years
- Payment of the applicable panel assessment fee (£450 + VAT for members, or local equivalent)
- Successful completion of the panel assessment interview and post-interview onboarding

Exemptions

*You may be eligible for a full or partial exemption from the academic part of the RICS Expert Witness training if you can demonstrate to RICS that you undertook a formal expert witness training programme elsewhere within the last three years of the same standard and with the same or substantially similar learning outcomes as the RICS training. Please note, that you will still be required to have all five competencies of the RICS Expert Witness Certificate programme successfully assessed. For details of the exemption policy, please contact DRS on the details provided below.

* You may be eligible for an exemption from the RICS Expert Witness Certificate including the assessment of the five competencies of the RICS Expert Witness Certificate if you can demonstrate that your senior status in the EW field is such that you do not need to undertake any further training. See below for details.

If you wish to apply for an exemption, please contact DRS on the details provided below.

Guidance to the criteria

Before the interview you will need to send to DRS:

- Completed RICS EWAS Skills Form for RICS Accredited Expert Witnesses
- Expert witness CV
- Your template Terms of Engagement when taking on expert witness instructions
- One expert witness written report completed by you in the last five years
- Evidence of compliance with CPD requirements of your principal professional body/bodies in the last three calendar years
- The appropriate fee

Please note: Candidates are responsible for ensuring that their submissions are complete and contain all required information. RICS is not obliged to follow up with candidates for missing details or provide an opportunity to amend or improve submissions after they have been received.

RICS EWAS Skills Form

In this form, you should indicate your skills, geographic coverage, the value, complexity, and types of disputes in which you submit you are qualified to testify, and the tribunals before which you believe you are competent to appear. Your skills form will be provided to the interview board and during the interview it will help them assess whether you have identified your skills correctly and whether the skills you list are commensurate with your experience in practice. It should be clear from the information provided that your professional knowledge and experience are such as to allow RICS to hold you out as an expert in your field of primary professional practice as well as being a person who is able competently to discharge the role of an expert witness.

Professional references

Your skills form must include details of two referees who can support your application. Your referees must have significant standing in the expert witness field (such as solicitors or other RICS Accredited Expert Witnesses).

DRS will contact your referees and obtain written references before the interview and will share these with the interview board. The referees will be asked to comment on your standing in the profession, your knowledge, expertise, and expert witness experience. A member of the interview panel may speak to the referees prior to the interview. RICS also reserves the right to make wider inquiries among your colleagues or clients etc where it regards this as appropriate.

You must ensure that your referees have been informed that you are submitting an application for RICS Expert Witness accreditation; have agreed to act as your referees; consent to RICS being given their details and RICS has permission to contact them.

Expert witness CV

You will need to submit your CV that focuses on your expert witness experience as well as your professional knowledge and experience in your field of primary professional practice. You should write this CV with potential instructing party/parties in mind.

Template Terms of Engagement

You will be required to submit your Terms of Engagement that you use when taking on instruction as expert witness.

Written expert witness report

You will be required to submit one expert witness report prepared by you within the last five years. The report must have been produced in connection with a real expert witness appointment in an actual dispute, litigation, arbitration, tribunal, adjudication, or other formal proceedings. Reports prepared solely for training, assessment, educational, or mock-case purposes will not be accepted.

Ideally, the report should have been submitted to and accepted by a court, tribunal, arbitrator, adjudicator, or other dispute resolution forum. The report should reflect as wide a range of your skills and competencies as an expert witness as possible.

We are aware that in some regions it is common for an expert witness report to be drawn up by a team of experts. If you are not able to submit a report written only by you, we can accept a report to which you substantially contributed with your contribution highlighted. You must make it clear to DRS that you are submitting a report that was not single-authored by you. If the report had a lead/named expert, please provide RICS with the name and email address of the lead expert including a confirmation that the lead expert is happy for RICS to contact them and ask them for confirmation of your involvement/contribution.

Before submitting your decision, you must make sure that you have your employer's and clients' consent to disclose any sensitive details in your assessment submission. If you cannot get this consent, you must ensure that any reference to the parties, properties or other personal information is suitably anonymised. For clarity, assessors prefer decisions that have been anonymised rather than redacted. This means personal information should be altered to prevent identification, rather than simply obscured by blacking it out.

CPD

You will need to submit evidence that you have complied with the CPD requirements of your principal professional body/bodies in the last three calendar years. This should include a breakdown of your CPD and should cover CPD relevant to your field of expertise as well as the role of an expert witness. (Please note: Copies of CPD records, including the RICS online records, must be provided with expert witness matters highlighted.) The interview board will discuss your CPD records and their relevance with you.

Appearances as an expert witness

In your skills form, you will be requested to provide details of the matters before a court or other tribunal in which you have appeared as an expert witness in the last five years. Such appearances are not a prerequisite for inclusion on the RICS President's Panel of Accredited Expert Witnesses, but this information may be of relevance to RICS DRS in the nomination process.

Senior status in the expert witness field

You may apply for inclusion on the RICS President's Panel of Accredited Expert Witnesses without having completed formal expert witness training recently if you are a recognised senior figure in your industry whose reputation as an expert witness is of the highest standing. This pathway is intended for individuals who completed formal EW training more than five years ago and whose long-established expert witness expertise makes further formal training unnecessary.

To be eligible, you must clearly demonstrate that you have completed formal expert witness training, and your experience as an expert witness is exceptional, extensive, and widely acknowledged by your peers. Please note that professional seniority alone is not sufficient. You must evidence a significant track record of undertaking expert witness instructions and delivering work of a consistently high standard.

In your application, you will be required to provide comprehensive, detailed evidence of:

- Details of your formal expert witness training
- The depth and breadth of your experience acting as an expert witness
- The nature and complexity of past instructions

- Your understanding of expert witness duties, standards, and responsibilities
- Examples that show your independence, analytical skills, and credibility in the role

Your application will first undergo a desktop review, during which an assessor will evaluate whether your senior expert witness experience meets the criteria for this route. The fee for the desktop review is £100+VAT.

If your submission progresses, you will then be invited to an interview. During the interview, the Panel will explore your background and experience in depth to determine whether your standing and track record as an expert witness are of such a level that further formal training is unnecessary.

Only candidates whose expert witness expertise is considered truly exceptional will be approved through this senior status route.

Assessment Interview

The purpose of the panel interview is to test your knowledge and ability to discharge the role of an expert witness. You should expect far-reaching and diverse questions. The assessors will delve into your knowledge as well as your attitude, commitment, and understanding of the role of an expert witness.

Knowledge

The interview board will refer to your skills form and your other submissions and question your knowledge on inter alia:

- the responsibilities and duties of expert witnesses,
- acceptance of instructions,
- conflicts of interest and perceived bias,
- relevant law and rules of evidence,
- oral evidence,
- immunity from suit,
- CPD compliance.

You must also be familiar with the current RICS Professional Standards for surveyors acting as expert witnesses.

Formal training and experience

The interview board will ask probing questions to establish that you comply with these criteria. It may ask questions about your formal expert witness training and your experience acting as an expert witness.

The interview board will also have a discussion with you to establish that:

- you have had at least 10 years' experience in your sphere of primary professional practice or demonstrable equivalent seniority and professional standing.
- you have completed a minimum of one expert witness report in the last five years or there are reasonable grounds for not complying with this requirement. The interview board will also discuss the quality of your report and its compliance with the RICS Expert Witness Practice Statement and Guidance Note.
- you are recognised by your peers as experienced and skilled to a level consistent with being an expert in all areas set out in your skills form.
- in your skills form you properly identified your skills and the geographical areas where you can act as expert witness

The interview board will also discuss with you your appearances (if any) as an expert witness before a court or other tribunal in the last five years.

General

The interview board will consider your overall suitability. This will include:

- your ability and aptitude as an expert witness
- the standard and professionalism of any documentation and communications submitted by you
- any upheld complaints against you
- any judicial criticism or comment.

For the possible outcome of the assessment and other information about the interview, please refer to the RICS Interview Guide for Candidates available at www.rics.org/drs

Post interview

All panellists must sign and comply with the Service Level Agreement between DRS and the panellist. A copy is available from DRS upon request.

RICS Professionalism Module and Diversity and Inclusion E-learning - if you are successful, you will be enrolled in the e-learning modules and sent a link to access the modules free of charge. If you completed the courses in the last three years, you do not have to complete them again. We will accept certificates that are less than three years old.

Successful candidates are required to pay an annual subscription fee (£100 + VAT for RICS members or £120 + VAT for non-RICS members, or local equivalent) to remain on the RICS President's Panel of Accredited Expert Witnesses.

To remain on the panel, you will have to undergo regular reassessments. For further information about reassessments, please refer to the Criteria for Reassessment.

Please note

Being accredited as an expert witness by RICS and being on the RICS President's Panel of Accredited Expert Witnesses will make you eligible for nominations by RICS DRS but is not a guarantee that you will receive nominations from RICS.
